GRAYLING 24 AND CHEBOYGAN 22

"WOULD BE MICH. CHAMPS" BOW TO GRAYLING.

Grayling's Fast High School Team Play Visitors Off Feet.

Fresh from victory over the fast Alpena basket ball team at the Auditorium at Cheboygan Friday night, the Cheboygan team invaded Grayling court Saturday night. It looked like defeat sure enough, but characteristic to Grayling players, they are never defeated until after the last play is made, and the boys jump into the harness and put up a game that made their home people, as well as the visitors, sit up and take notice. The game was fast right from the start. Fred Alexander of this city and Principal Knott of Cheboygan acted as referees. The first half was fast and furious and it was up to our boys to match skill against beef and they did it to perfection. The first half resulted in a score of 14 to 12 in favor of the visitors.

If anything, the second half was faster than the first and gave the spectators a thrill that will not soon be forgotten. Cheboygan annexed eight points in the second half and Grayling twelve, making the score 22 to 24 in favor of Grayling. Cheboygan has a crafty bunch of players and at one stage of the game when they were being numerically outplayed by their adversaries, "time out" was called and a discussion was held regarding a foul that had been called by Alexander. This gave the players an opportunity to "get their wind" and pull themselves together for better organized effort. Judging by the way Grayling was playing at this time, they were due for several more baskets and would have nicely added to their score.

Another feature occurred in the game when the time-keeper, called time at the conclusion of the first half. There was so much cheering by the spectators that the time-keeper's call of "time" could not be heard by the players nor the referees and before the game could be stopped a field basket was thrown, giving Cheboygan two points. They claimed the points in spite of our protest.

The second half ended with the score 24 to 22 in our favor, but as Cheboygan claimed the two disputed points in the first half, and according to their scoring, the game would have been a tie. This ended the game so far as we were concerned for we won fair and square. However the visitors asked for another five minutes interval, which was granted and they made four scores and Grayling none.

In looking up the rules of scoring they plainly state that when the time-keeper's call of time is given that finishes the inning and no scores may be counted except a goald throw, and then only when the ball has left the players' hands, before the call of time. This seems a fair review of the disputed two points claimed by Cheboygan and there is no doubt but that our opinion will be upheld by the National committee on rules.

NOTES.

Recently Cheboygan suffered an overwhelming defeat by Alpena, and they decided it was time that they got busy and turned the trick. Therefore the school employed the services of Ernest Wilson, a Detroit Y. M. C. A. coach and he put the Cheboyganites thru a course of sprouts that did the business. Let it be understood that Alpena has some crack team and one that hoped to beat them would have to be up in the championship class, and Cheboygan did herself proud to defeat them. Much credit for the great improvement in the team is due to the coaching of Mr. Wilson.

The latter came to Grayling with the team and almost had a convulsion fit when he saw what his team was up against. He tried to do some coaching from the side lines but was reminded that he was acting as time-

Child Welfare and Work of Mothers' Clubs.

(Paper read by Mrs. T. W. Hanson at the Mothers' club meeting at the school house, Feb. 28th)

There is an old saying that "All the world loves a lover!" It seems to me that for this occasion, the quotation might appropriately be changed to "All the world loves a mother." High and low, rich and poor, poet, painter and scholar, alike pay homage at her feet. The best loved songs are the lullabies. In a collection of paintings there are none that receive greater admiration than the pictures of motherhood; whether the scene is from a humble home or one of luxury.

So then we come together to talk for a while with each other about Mothers' clubs, and the relation of the mother and teacher to the child, we are dealing with one of the greatest questions of the age. Many a successful man pays tribute to the influence of his mother's care of his mother as the real motive power behind the achievement of his worldly honors. Abraham Lincoln said that "All I am or hope to be I owe to my mother." The world is filled with men who testify to the helpful influence of the mother, who taught them in the early formative years, that the most important thing in the world is not to be great, but to be good, for only the good are truly great.

Workers among neglected and criminally inclined children, all agree that the chief trouble with the children that come under their jurisdiction is traced directly to the home. Since this is the condition, it is necessary to get at the mothers, in some way. "Not necessarily those who are surrounded by crime and poverty, but at the mother we see and talk with most frequently in our own little community, and thru her and her children extend the kindly influence that makes all mothers interested in the children of all other mothers.

Ministers, physicians, lawyers and merchants, all form themselves into associations for the interchange of ideas according to their various experiences, and the organization works to the advantage of each member. On the same principle, why cannot a great amount of good be accomplished by friendly and informal interchange of experience in Mothers' meetings?

First there is the co-operation of mothers with teachers to be considered. Perhaps at no time in mother's responsibilities does the advice "Wait and Investigate" stand for quite so much as when the child and teacher are concerned. The greatest requisite for a good teacher is love for children. Unfortunately we do occasionally find a teacher who dislikes children and is merely putting in time between pay-days, however, we are safe to say they are rare.

For our mutual interest, let us suppose the right kind of teacher. Her work is pleasant, agreeable, she studies how best she can advance her pupils; a knowledge of child life enables her to treat each pupil according to his or her peculiar temperament, keeping the class in a happy frame of mind, each one ready to do his or her very best, because the love in the teacher's heart has awakened the child love for the teacher. Even with the best of teachers a great many difficulties arise. When we consider the numerous problems to be solved in the individual home, it would be folly to expect a school room to be always "sunshine" and no clouds. When difficulties do arise a great deal of tact should be used and proper consideration shown the teacher, if you wish to do the right thing by the child. In a kindly way investigate thoroughly get all sides of the controversy before deciding who is really at fault. When the parent is not quite sure of an abundance of self-control, interview with the teacher, involved very often, proves disastrous to both parties and brings about an unhappy atmosphere for the child. Parents owe it to the teacher, to their children and to themselves to visit the schools in a friendly way for mutual good. Let (Continued on last page.)

Grayling Young People Wed.

Miss Frances Wingard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Wingard was united in marriage on Saturday evening last to Mr. Clyde Gates, son of Mr. F. M. Gates of Detroit. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Moshier were the only attendants and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Anton Mitchell of the M. M. church, the affair taking place at the home of the bride. The bride looked very pretty in white, her hair was trimmed with Irish crocheted lace.

The announcements, which were issued previous to the marriage, read Saturday, March 11th.

The young couple had purchased a photograph studio at Fowlerville and wished to attend the Eastman school of Professional Photography held in Detroit this week, and so arranged the marriage earlier so they might attend together. They left on the midnight train Saturday, for Detroit to remain for the week, before going to Fowlerville.

The bride is well known in Grayling, having lived here the greater part of her life, while Mr. Gates has been here but little over one year and during that time has been employed as book-keeper at the Drs. Insley and Keyport office. Both have the hearty congratulations of their many friends.

M. A. C. BUILDING BURNS QUICKLY

STUDENT VOLUNTEERS AND FIREFMEN SAVE MEN'S DORMITORY.

WITH A LOSS OF $240,000

Fire is Supposed to Have Originated in the Basement of the Engineering Building.

East Lansing—Fire destroyed the engineering building and shops of the Michigan Agricultural college with a loss of $240,000. Student volunteers and Lansing firemen saved the men's dormitory, and other college buildings after a hard fight. A. M. Brown, secretary of the state board of agriculture, gave out the following schedule of losses: Engineering hall, $119,000; machine shop and foundry, $15,000; civil engineering equipment, $23,000; machine shop equipment, $59,000; physics and electrical equipment, $4,000; Wells dormitory for men, $4,000; losses to students in instruments and property, estimated $4,000; total, $240,000.

The fire is believed to have started in the cement laboratory in the basement of the engineering building where there were gas ovens for heating bricks. The flames had gained such headway when they were discovered and little could be done to save the building. The east end of the building burned first. The blaze quickly spread along the wooden floors and hallways. Within a few minutes after the fire was discovered the intense heat shattered windows and an hour later the floors crumbled through and a section of the main wall crumbled.

FAVORS A BATTERY AT M. A. C.

President Kedzie is Said to Have Changed His Mind.

East Lansing—President Frank S. Kedzie of M. A. C. is lending his support to the cause of preparedness and more efficient training for home defense. He is favoring the establishment of a student military battery at M. A. C. and the erection of a new armory for the college. The present armory is inadequate for drill purposes and the war department has but lately called the attention of the college authorities to this fact.

President Kedzie does not greatly in favor of an armory battery last spring, when it was proposed to organize one as an adjunct of the state national guard. His opposition and that of the faculty was backed by parents of students, who protested against their sons enlisting for national guard service. The president's idea now is for the creation of a battery, having no connection except those with the government, and controlled by the rest of the military organization.

STARTLING DISCOVERIES

Victims of Tuberculosis Are Far More Numerous Than Reported.

Lansing—Out of 5,522 persons examined for tuberculosis by the state board of health clinics in eight counties, 610 persons were found to have positive cases of tuberculosis, while 115 were suspicious, and so-called "borderline" cases. This shows that the work of examination being conducted has brought to light hundreds of cases heretofore unknown to physicians. As the records on file in the state board of health show conclusively that less than 10 per cent of the tuberculosis cases were ever reported to the state department. What the number would be if every person were examined would probably startle the state for where clinics are held only a small proportion of the population submit to an examination.

MICHIGAN NEWS ITEMS

Governor Ferris has honored extradition papers for Barney Smith, an alleged pickpocket under arrest in Detroit, who is wanted by Cleveland authorities.

The return to Jackson prison Thursday of George Lawrence, of Portland, Ore., removed worry from the shoulders of Detroit detectives who had joined in the nation-wide search for Lawrence, following his escape from Jackson prison January 10, 1915.

John McCutough, 42, came to Owasco to visit his son and the trip resulted in his marriage to Mrs. Zoe McCutough, 37, employed in an Owasco newspaper office. She divorced him about 10 years ago. They will live on his farm near Detroit.

Peter Murphy was feeding chickens at the home of the Little Sisters of the Poor in Grand Rapids when an attorney from Dallas, Tex., informed him a rich cousin had died there, leaving him an estate of $25,000. "Well, go ahead and collect it," said Murphy, continuing his work.

Henry Ford wired the secretary of state to have his name taken from the presidential primary ballot, but word came after the legal limit, and his name will remain on the ballots, following a decision of the attorney-general.

Fires claimed 11 lives in January, according to a report of the state fire marshal. Twenty-six were seriously burned during the month, 10 firemen were injured and 18 public buildings, including seven schools, five hotels, four churches and three theatres were burned.

LETTER FROM STATE CAPITOL

THE RAILROAD STATE CASE PUTS A CRIMP IN SOME OF THE POLITICAL PLANS.

CANDIDATES FOR PRESIDENT

The Heads of Important Committees of the Legislature Settle Political Who is Who.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Lansing—Judge Clarence W. Session's decision in the Ann Arbor rate case in the United States district court upholding the two-cent fare law is thought here at the capitol to preclude the possibility that the next legislature will be called upon to tackle the question of repealing the two-cent law.

The decision of Judge Sessions in the Ann Arbor case, while admitting the legality of the railroad's move, found as a matter of fact that on both the passenger and freight business the road was making 6 per cent on its investment.

There have been rumors, and most of them based upon statements of the railroad men, that they intend to take a hand in the next legislative primaries and elections, to get as many representatives and senators in the 1917 gathering favorable to their cause as possible. But Lansing is satisfied now that the Ann Arbor decision has put a crimp in this plan.

The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic rate case is still with the master who took testimony, and there is no evidence now of any sudden termination of that case, although the master's decision may come at any time.

Two Presidential Candidates.

Three candidates for the republican nomination for president had qualified for places on the Michigan presidential primary ballot when the time for filing petitions expired at noon on Tuesday, February 28. William Albert Smith of Grand Rapids, Henry Ford of Detroit, and William Gerard Simpson of Detroit are the three whose names will appear on the primary ballot for the election April 3. Woodrow Wilson will be the only candidate of the democratic party at the presidential primary, while the national progressives have no candidate. Aside from the republicans and democrats, the only party to file petitions was the prohibitionist, William P. F. Ferguson of Pennsylvania is the candidate of the prohibition party. The presidential primary in no way alters the method of electing delegates to the national conventions. The delegates will be chosen in state and district conventions to be announced at the end of the state central committee. However, the delegates are bound under the terms of the presidential primary law to support at the national conventions the candidates endorsed at the primary. The law does not specify whether the delegates shall be bound by the preferential vote for more than one ballot.

National Committee Chairman Charles B. Warren of Detroit will have no opposition for renomination at the republican primary. There are two candidates for national committee in the democratic primary. National Committee Chairman E. O. Wood of Flint is a candidate for renomination, and is opposed by William A. Comstock of Alpena, whose name was proposed by the so-called "original Wilsonites." Gustavus D. Pope, of Detroit, is opposed as national committee man of the national progressive party.

Legislative Committee. One of the most important appointments made by a speaker of the Michigan house of representatives is the chairmanship of the ways and means committee. Although the job carries with it considerable work, it generally brings the chairman in the limelight and from the standpoint of the legislative politician, is a place well worth having. While it has been granted that Rep. Henry Croll, Jr., of Clare county, would be chairman of the ways and means committee of the legislature next year, if the republicans are again in control and Rep. Charles W. Smith of Lapeer is re-elected speaker, it was learned a few days ago that Rep. James Jerome of Detroit, is being groomed for the honor. "Because of the fact he has served in the legislature much longer than Croll, Rep. Jerome, by right of seniority has first claim on the chairmanship of the ways and means committee," Rep. Harry Hinkley, chairman of the ways and means committee during the sessions of 1913 and 1915, is a candidate for the senate. Rep. William Hank, the second republican member of the committee, has congressional aspirations and Jerome is next in line.

During the session of 1915 Jerome was chairman of the state affairs committee of the house and also of the committee of the house and of the ways and means committee, he would have to surrender his claim to the chairmanship of the state affairs committee. Should Rep. Smith be re-elected speaker and Jerome should head the ways and means committee, it would be a severe disappointment to Rep. Croll. It was Croll who started the petitions in the house to line the members up in support of the plan to re-elect Smith speaker at the session of 1917. It was generally conceded that Croll expected his reward in the shape of the chairmanship of the ways and means committee, and because of his friendship for the speaker, it is believed he stands an excellent chance to land the plum. However, if Jerome's friends press his claim to seniority, it may change conditions somewhat.

The Aviation Corps of the M. N. G. The governor has received a letter from the Aero Club of America by its president, Alan R. Hawley, of New York City, requesting him to commission an officer of the Michigan National Guard to attend one of the aviation schools to be conducted by an eastern aeroplane company. The Aero club will pay $40 towards defraying the expense of training the officer from Michigan, and according to the letter, it is planned to obtain an officer from each of the forty-eight states. The Michigan National Guard has no aviation corps, for the principal reason that it owns no aeroplane. However, Col. John S. Hersey, adjutant general of the state militia, has received word that a group of Detroit men have plans to buy an aeroplane and turn it over to the national guard. If the Detroit sportsmen carry out their proposed plan, a number of aviators will be recruited in that city and officers of the guard who are willing to enter this branch of the service will be instructed in the art of flying by men obtained through the Detroit organization.

Col. Hersey says an aviation corps would be of great benefit to the Michigan National Guard. As a result of the plan presented by the Detroit men, the military department will not recommend to the governor that the offer of the Aero club be accepted.

Democratic National Committee Man. Sufficient petitions were filed with Secretary of State Vaughan Tuesday morning to place the name of William A. Comstock of Alpena on the democratic primary ballot as a candidate for national committee in opposition to E. O. Wood of Flint. Clarence Finkler of Pontiac filed the first Comstock petition. Genesee county is the home of E. O. Wood, who has been the democratic national committee man from Michigan for several years. It is said Comstock has the support of the so-called "original Wilsonites" and that political enemies of the present national committee man will make a determined effort to dislodge him at the April primary.

State Board Appointments. The governor has two appointments to make on important state boards, but he may be several days before he fills the vacancy on the pardon board and he announced recently that he would take no action towards filling the vacancy on the board of control of the soldiers' home until after the next meeting of that board. It is believed the governor will follow the recommendations of the board of control of the soldiers' home in appointing a new man on that board, and he has already announced that the appointee will be a civil war veteran.

The State's Kitchen. The statement of W. J. Mickel, deputy state food and dairy inspector, which gives details of Michigan's mammoth public kitchen may interest many readers.

Mickel's report has been given Gov. Ferris through the channels of the state food department and it was one of the documents that was not destroyed by the fire that attacked the old capitol building.

Last year it cost the taxpayers of Michigan just $1,671,840 to supply this gigantic public "kitchen" with food stuffs. In Mickel's statement of expenses are grouped 18 public institutions which are dependent for existence on public appropriation and which consumed 1,200,000 pounds of beans. In addition to the soup that could be made from that great amount of beans, the state used 1,000,000 pounds of beef.

Half a million pounds of butter were consumed in the state "kitchen," 1,000,000 pounds of sugar, 20,000 pounds of baking powder, 150,000 pounds of coffee, 100,000 pounds of prunes, 100,000 pounds of other dried fruits, 20,000 pounds of flour, 350,000 pounds of lard and lard substitutes, 12,000 gallons of molasses, 500,000 pounds of pork, 100,000 barrels of potatoes, 100,000 barrels of rice, 20 gallons of extract, 7,000 pounds of spices, 50,000 pounds of tea, 15,000 gallons of vinegar, 175,000 tons of soap, soap chips and soap powder to the amount of $100,000.

The kitchens of the following institutions consumed the above: State hospital at Newberry, Marquette state prison; state hospitals at Kalamazoo, Traverse City, Pontiac, Saginaw industrial school for the blind, Ionia reformatory, Ionia state hospital for the criminal insane, Michigan Soldiers' home, Grand Rapids; school for children at Coldwater; school for girls at Adrian; Jackson prison; school for the blind at Lansing; industrial school at Flint; home for the feeble-minded at Lapeer; epileptic farm at Wajahome; tuberculosis sanitarium at Hqw.

ceded to sell the stock at $100 per share. So far as Michigan is concerned the company can go on selling its stock and nothing can be done, except to lay plans for locking the door before the horse is taken from the stable. It is said that a board could be formed composed of the secretary of the public domain commission, state geologist and soil expert of the M. A. C., whose duties it would be to pass upon the incorporation of future land companies authorized in Michigan.

MEETINGS CONVICTS BURN TO DEATH

TWELVE MORE WERE SERIOUSLY INJURED BY EXPLOSION IN CITY JAIL.

FIFTY TAKEN OUT UNHARMED

Fire Department Quarters in the Same Building Quickly Extinguished the Fire.

El Paso, Tex.—Eighteen dead, six probably fatally burned, and a score of more seriously injured, was the toll of an explosion and fire at the city jail. The name of one American is included in the list of dead and 12 are numbered among those seriously injured. Surgeons said that the death list would probably reach 20, and that many of the injured would not live more than a few hours.

H. G. Bagley, a trusty, named H. M. Cross, whose home was said to be Davenport, Ia., as the man who struck the match which started the fire. Cross was under arrest for vagrancy. He died of his injuries. When the burst of flames blew out the windows and doors, a number of victims dashed into the streets afire from head to foot. One of the victims, a veritable torch, plunged through the jagged remains of a window pane and gained the jail roof where he expired. A number of the prisoners were blinded.

Albert Curles, Louisville, Ky., and A. C. Wanoy, Holland, Mich., were among the names of those seriously burned as given out by the police department. Many of the victims were thoroughly saturated with the solution when the flames enveloped them and their cries of agony were heard by a great crowd which had assembled on the outside of the jail.

Jail officials attribute the origin of the fire to the deliberate act of a prisoner in throwing a lighted match into one of the containers holding the explosive fluid. Surrounding the bath quarters are rows of cells and it was in these that most of the fatalities occurred. Locked in the prison, were unable to escape the blinding sheet of flame. Those who were rescued were found unconscious and terribly burned.

About 50 prisoners were taken out unharmed and placed in quarters removed from the bath house under heavy guard.

The fire department, quartered in the same building, quickly extinguished the fire, and with the assistance of five physicians, rendered aid to the burned victims.

SPANISH STEAMER HITS ROCK

Four Hundred and Forty-Five Persons Are Missing.

Santos, Brazil—About 445 passengers and members of the crew are missing and believed lost as a result of the sinking of the Spanish steamer Principe de Asturias on Sebastian Point while en route from Buenos Aires, Argentina, to Barcelona, Spain. The steamer struck a rock and sank in five minutes. Fifty-seven passengers and 86 members of the crew have been brought to Santos by the French steamer Viga, which reached the scene of the disaster shortly after having received the ill-starred steamer's frantic wireless calls for assistance.

The Viga brought word also that an unidentified Spanish steamship is cruising in the vicinity of the wreck in the hope of finding other survivors and of recovering the bodies of those lost.

The Principe de Asturias is said to have left Buenos Aires with 495 passengers and crew of 193 men. Sebastian Point, off which the wreck occurred is the western extremity of the island of that name, near the entrance to Santos bay.

N. D. BAKER WAR SECRETARY

Was Former Mayor of Cleveland, Accepts the Position.

Washington—Newton D. Baker, former mayor of Cleveland, has been selected by President Wilson for secretary of war. His name had been mentioned in connection with the position several times. He was offered a place when the cabinet was formed but declined. Mr. Baker has accepted the position and is now arranging his affairs in Cleveland preparatory to coming to Washington to take up his duties.

Baker is not entirely without cabinet experience. He served as private secretary to Postmaster General Wilson from 1895 to 1897. In addition to practicing law, he was city solicitor of Cleveland for 10 years, serving from 1902 to 1912.

El Paso, Tex.—Eighteen dead, six probably fatally burned, and a score of more seriously injured, was the toll of an explosion and fire at the city jail. The name of one American is included in the list of dead and 12 are numbered among those seriously injured. Surgeons said that the death list would probably reach 20, and that many of the injured would not live more than a few hours.

H. G. Bagley, a trusty, named H. M. Cross, whose home was said to be Davenport, Ia., as the man who struck the match which started the fire. Cross was under arrest for vagrancy. He died of his injuries. When the burst of flames blew out the windows and doors, a number of victims dashed into the streets afire from head to foot. One of the victims, a veritable torch, plunged through the jagged remains of a window pane and gained the jail roof where he expired. A number of the prisoners were blinded.

Albert Curles, Louisville, Ky., and A. C. Wanoy, Holland, Mich., were among the names of those seriously burned as given out by the police department. Many of the victims were thoroughly saturated with the solution when the flames enveloped them and their cries of agony were heard by a great crowd which had assembled on the outside of the jail.

DRINK MORE WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat and take Salts for Backache or Bladder Trou-
Neutralize acids.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy, the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush out the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person. Mostly, at least you feel a sting in the kidneys, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gas, sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink 8 or 9 glasses of water; also get from any pharmacist, four ounces of Jad Salts; take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys, and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot hurt, makes a delightful after-dinner drink. After dinner drink what everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring back color, gloss and thickness with Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores. Known as "Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not glamorous, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning, gray hair has disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

he fret that, when the bill had been paid and the essential tips bestowed, there would remain in his pocket little more than cab fare. Supremely self-confident, he harbored no doubts of a smiling future—now that the dark pages in his record had been turned and sealed by a resolution he held irrevocable.

His spirits had mounted to a high pitch, thanks to their successful evasion. He was young, he was in love, he was hungry, he was—in short—very much alive. And the consciousness of common peril knitted an enchanting intimacy into their talk.

For the first time in his history Lanyard found himself in the company of a woman to whom he dared—and cared—to speak without reserve—a circumstance intrinsically intoxicating. And stimulated by her unquestionable integrity and sympathy, he did talk without reserve—of old Troyon's and its double Marcel, of Bourke and his wanderings of the education of the Lone Wolf and his career less in pride than in relief that it was ended, of the future he must achieve for himself.

And, sitting with chin cradled on the backs of her interlaced fingers, the girl listened with such indulgence as women find always for their lovers. Of herself she had little to say. Lanyard filled in to his taste the outlines of the simple history of the young woman, an of good family obliged to become self-supporting.

And if at times her grave eyes clouded and her attention wandered, it was less in ennui than because of occult trains of thought set in motion by some chance word or phrase of Lanyard's.

"I'm boring you," he suggested once with quick contrition, waking up to the fact that he'd monopolized the conversation for many minutes on end.

She shook a pensive head. "No, again. But I wonder, do you appreciate the magnitude of the task you've set yourself?"

"Possibly not," he conceded avergantly, "but it doesn't matter. The heavier the odds, the greater the incentive to win."

"I do believe that, and yet—" She lowered her head and began to trace a meaningless pattern on the cloth before her. "You've given me to understand that I'm responsible for your sudden awakening—that it's because of a regard conceived for me you're so anxious to become an honest man. Suppose—suppose you were to find out you'd been mistaken in me?"

"That isn't possible," he objected promptly.

She smiled upon him wistfully. "But if it were—" "Then—I think," he said soberly—"I think I'd feel as though there were nothing but emptiness beneath my feet."

"If you found I had deceived you—" "Miss Shannon?" He threw an arm across the table and suddenly imprisoned her hand. "There's no use beating about the bush—you've got to know."

She drew back suddenly with a steady-faced burners. With their wiles men in small ways of business in the neighborhood.

Entering to this company Lanyard selected a square, marble-topped table against the back wall, untroubled by the girl upon the plush-upholstered seat behind it, ordered coffee and writing materials, and proceeded to light a cigarette with the nonchalance of one to whom time is of no consequence.

"What is it?" the girl asked guardedly, as the waiter hurried off to exchange his commissions. "You've not stopped in here for nothing?"

"True—but lower, please!" he hesitated a long time before rushing a dark woman, infected by a desperate armed man—if I know anything about that mongrel crew! Besides, when they do get their courage up, the lack of light will stave off discovery of this way of escape. And now, one word more."

A flash of the lamp located her hand. Calmly he possessed himself of it.

"I've brought you into trouble enough as it is through my stupidity," he said; "but for that, this place should have been a refuge to us until we were quite ready to leave Paris. So now we mustn't forget, before we go out to run God only knows what gauntlet, to fix a rendezvous in event of separation. I can think of none better suited to our purposes than the Sacre-Coeur."

Her fingers tightened gently upon his. "I understand," she said quietly; "I've obliged to separate—I'm to go direct to the Sacre-Coeur upon the hill-top and await you there."

"Right! But let's hope there'll be no such necessity."

Then, hand in hand, like frightened children, these two stole down the tunnel-like passageway, through a formidable passage, more like a well-emptied two-story old tunnel, and came out into the gloomy, sinuous and silent Rue d'Assas.

Here they encountered few wayfarers, and in those few, preoccupied with anxiety to win to shelter from the inclement night, they seemed, no doubt, some student of the Quartier with his sweetheart—Lanyard, and his shabby raincoat, striding rapidly, head and shoulders bowed against the driving mist, the girl in her trim Burberry clinging trustfully to his arm.

Avoiding the nearer stops of the underground Metropolitan as dangerous, Lanyard steered a roundabout course through byways to the Rue de Sevres station of the Nord-Sud, from which, in due course, they climbed to the surface again at the Place de la Concorde, walked several blocks, picked up a taxicab, and in less than half an hour from the time of their departure from the Impasse Stanislas were comfortably ensconced in a cabaret, a little restaurant of modest pretensions just north of Les Halles.

now. And it isn't fair to let you go on hoping that I might some time consent to marry you. For that's impossible."

"You—forgive me—you're not already married?"

"No."

"Or promised?"

"No."

"Or in love with someone else?"

Again she told him, gently, "No."

His face cleared. He squared his shoulders. He even mustered up a smile.

"Then it isn't impossible. No human obstacle exists that time can't overthrow. In spite of all you say, I shall go on hoping with all my heart and soul and strength."

"But you don't understand—" "You tell me—make me understand?"

After a long pause she told him once more, and very sadly: "No."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Sheer Impudence.

Though it was not yet eight o'clock when they entered the restaurant, it was something after eleven before Lanyard called for his bill.

Now again the rain had ceased and, though the sky remained overcast, the atmosphere was clear and brisk with a touch of frost, in grateful contrast to the dull and muggy air that had obtained for the last twenty-four hours.

"We'll walk," Lanyard suggested—"if you don't mind—part of the way at least; it'll eat up time, and a bit of exercise will do us both good."

The girl assented quietly. The drum of their heels on fast-drying sidewalks struck sharp echoes from the silence of that drowsy quarter, a lonely clamor that rendered it impossible to ignore their apparent solitude—as impossible as it was for Lanyard to ignore the fact that they were followed.

Supremely on the alert, he had discovered the pursuit before they left the block of the restaurant. Dissembling, partly to avoid alarming the girl, partly to trick the follower into a feeling of greater security, he turned this way and that, round several corners, until quite convinced that the shadow was dedicated to himself exclusively, then promptly revised his prior purpose and instead of stooping to darker backways, struck out directly for the broad, well-lighted, and lively Boulevard Sebastopol.

Crossing this without another backward glance, he turned north, seeking some café whose arrangements suited his designs; and presently, though not before their tramp had brought them almost to the line of the Grand boulevards, found one to his taste, a cheerful and well-lighted establishment situated upon a corner, with entrances from both streets. A hedge of forlorn trees knee-deep in winter thorns guarded its collection of round, metal tables and spindle-shanked chairs, of which few were occupied. Inside, visible through the wide plate-glass windows, perhaps a dozen patrons sat round half as many tables—no more—talking over dominoes and gossip.

Steady-paced burghers, with their wiles men in small ways of business in the neighborhood.

Entering to this company Lanyard selected a square, marble-topped table against the back wall, untroubled by the girl upon the plush-upholstered seat behind it, ordered coffee and writing materials, and proceeded to light a cigarette with the nonchalance of one to whom time is of no consequence.

door we came in," she murmured, smiling delightedly; "he's standing behind the fir trees, staring in."

"Can you make him out?" Lanyard asked without moving his lips.

"No more than that he's tall," she said with every indication of enjoying a most tremendous joke. "His face is all in shadow."

"Patience!" counseled the adventurer. "He'll take heart of courage when convinced of our innocence."

He poised his pen, scrutinized the ceiling for inspiration, and permitted a slow smile to irradiate his features. "You'll take this note, if you please," he said cheerfully, "to the address on the envelope, by mail—some distance, near the Etoile. A long chance, but one we must risk; give me half an hour alone, and I guarantee to discourage this animal one way or another. You understand?"

"Perfectly!" she laughed archly. He bent over and for a few moments wrote busily.

"Now he's walking slowly round the corner, never taking his eyes from you," the girl reported, shoulder to shoulder and head distractingly near his head.

"Good. Can you see him any better?"

"Not yet."

"This note," he said, without stopping his pen or appearing to say anything, "is for the concierge of a building where I rent stabling for a little, closed car. I find occasionally useful. I'm supposed there to be a chauffeur in the employ of a crazy Englishman who keeps me constantly traveling with him back and forth between Paris and London. That's to account for the irregularity with which I use the car. They know me, monsieur and madame, of the concierge, as Pierre Lamiere; and I know they're safe—not only trustworthy and of friendly disposition, but quite simple-minded; I don't believe they gossip much. If so, the chances are De Morbihan and his gang know nothing of the arrangement. But that's all speculation—a forlorn hope!"

"I understand," the girl chuckled at his elbow. "He's still prowling up and down outside the hedge."

"We're not going to need that car to-night; but the home of Mme. Ombre is close by; and I'll follow and join you there within an hour at most. Meanwhile this note will introduce you to the concierge and his wife—I hope you won't mind—as my fiancée. I'm telling them we became engaged in England, and I've brought you to Paris to visit my mother in Montrouge, but am detained by my employer's business, and will they please give you shelter for a night?"

"He's coming in," the girl announced quickly.

"To here?"

"Merely inside the row of little trees."

"Which entrance?"

"On the boulevard side. He's taken the corner table. Now a waiter's going out to him."

"You can see his face now?" Lanyard asked, sealing the note.

"Not well."

"It won't be Popinot," Lanyard reflected, addressing the envelope, "he's tall."

"This man is tall and slender. Wertheimer, possibly. Does he suggest an Englishman in any way?"

"Not in the least. He wears a mustache—blond—twisted up like the others."

Lanyard made no reply, but his heart sank, and he shivered imperceptibly with foreboding. He entered, no doubt but that the worst had happened, that to the number of his enemies in Paris was added Ekstrom. One furtive glance confirmed this inference. He swore bitterly, if privately, and with a countenance of childlike blandness, as he slipped the note and finished his cigarette.

"Who is it, then?" she asked. "Do you know him?"

"He reckoned swiftly against distressing her, recalling his mention of the fact that Ekstrom was credited with the Haysman murder."

"Merely a hanger-on of De Morbihan's," he told her lightly; "a spineless animal—no trouble about scaring him off. Here—take this note, please; we'll go now. But as we reach the door, turn back—and go out the other. You'll find a taxi without trouble and stop for nothing!"

WANTS DAMAGES FOR BITES

Employee of Minneapolis Library Brings Suit in a Case That Establishes a Precedent.

Bitten by a man he ejected from the branch public library at the Gateway, Jack Smith, employed at the branch, demands damages from the city under the workingman's compensation act. Jerome Jackman, of the city legal department, said Smith's claim was the most unusual that had come to his notice.

"A drunken man entered the library," said Mr. Jackman. "Mr. Smith started to usher him out. The fellow struggled and finally bit Mr. Smith's right hand, causing deep lacerations on the thumb and index finger. He has had the wound dressed four times by a physician and it seems slow to heal."

Mr. Jackman gave the opinion that Smith probably is entitled to compensation for loss of time and for medical attention. Minneapolis Journal.

Beware of Paraffin Cups. When an Englishman drinks a toast to his queen, he breaks the glass as a pretty little homage. Girard writes in the Philadelphia Ledger.

When you put a penny in the slot and extract an individual cup you should snatch it after using it. That isn't homage, but a precaution that may save a human life.

Do you know what happens to many of those discarded paraffin drinking cups? Picked up by careless people and used over and over again.

If you will recall that a dangerous germ exists even less at home on a glass cup than upon one made of paraffin you can easily see why neither should be used many times by many persons.

There is one certain way to outwit the germ: Crush the cup.

Principle, Program or Person

By REV. J. H. RALSTON
Secretary of Correspondence Department,
Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me hath everlasting life.—John 6:47.

The end of salvation, as the apostle Peter puts it, is the saving of the soul. Literally millions are—much interested in that salvation, but Satan has been too successful in keeping multitudes of them confused as to how it is obtainable. There may be three answers to the question, How is a man to be saved?

Saved by Principle. First, some seem to think a man is saved by adopting certain theological propositions; certain religious dogmas or teachings.

The weakness of this position is quite easily seen by the majority and they immediately say that the theory must eventuate in practice; there must be a program of conduct, and that program must be carried out in actual life.

Saved by Program. For such a program the moral law of God is put to tribute. The ethics of wise men of Old Testament times; the best ethics of seekers after truth of the first centuries; the ethics of the Sermon on the Mount and of Jesus himself and his apostles, are all put to tribute, and if it can be carried out, salvation will ensue perforce. This is the theory of the face of much teaching of the Word of God that man's righteousnesses are as filthy rags. Yet, with all this, there are thousands of men and women today who are trying some program of living to be their passport to eternal salvation. But sincere students of the principles and the ethics of Jesus have found that other teachings of Jesus take the foundation from under this program. Let it be kept in mind that the very same book that teaches principles and a program of living, is a book that emphatically, and without confusion or equivocation, proclaims that the salvation of the soul is not the adoption of such principles nor such a program of conduct.

Unique Religion. The religion of Jesus Christ is unique, differing from all other religions in that those who are to receive its benefits are not to do so as the result of their belief in its principles nor an alignment of their lives with its program of conduct. Neither Buddha nor Confucius nor Mohammed comes with such a claim. They give the principles and the program; but keep themselves in the background. Not so with Jesus Christ, and, strange as it may seem, his religion is in a sense, the most egoistic of all the religions that the race of man has ever received. He makes most astounding claims for himself: He is equal with the Father; he is the son of God; he has all power given to him in heaven and on earth; he can raise the dead; he can lay down his life, but he can take it up again; he can forgive sin; he is worthy to receive all honor and worship, both of men and of angels; in short, he claims to be God. He clearly teaches that salvation is not in assent to, nor in belief in his principles, nor in following a program of conduct that he gives, but in living union with himself.

Personality of Jesus Christ. We may note that in the text we find that belief is referred to, but no hint is given of principles or a program of living. The belief here, however, is not to be a mere intellectual exercise, but a soul movement. "This teaching is frequent. Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." "He that believeth on the Son of God hath everlasting life." "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." Now all this teaches that religion is not a matter of principles or program, but of personal contact with Jesus Christ. He is represented as the head of the body, of which saved men are the members. He is the chief part of the great spiritual building known as the church of God, of which his believers are parts. He is the vine in which believers are the branches. It is in intimate personal contact all the way through. One has very properly said: "Much of the deadness that has come to modern Christendom has resulted from loose ideas of the personal element in proclaiming the gospel; in presenting a creed instead of Christ; in presenting a plan of salvation rather than a person who saves."

Personal Contact Effected. How to get this personal contact with Jesus? Study Jesus, as he is presented, especially in the gospels and epistles of the New Testament, as the Son of God. While no one can say Jesus is Lord, except by the Holy Spirit, yet following the Holy Spirit in his teaching in the Scriptures, we may believe that he will give light, and light as man goes on honestly and sincerely seeking to know truth at this point.

Then let there be an utter and complete surrender of the soul to Jesus Christ. When Saul of Tarsus cried: "What shall I do, Lord?"—as he lay prostrate on the earth by the gate of Damascus, he made the great surrender which brought him to personal salvation, but as well to the adoption of principles that gave him a program of conduct pleasing to God.

Worthy of Remembrance. What I have done is worthy of nothing, but silence and forgetfulness, but what God has done for me is worthy of everlasting and thankful memory.

SYNOPSIS.

After attaining the Omber Jewels and the Haysman, Lanyard returns to Paris, for the first time in many years because he thinks Roddy, a Scotland Yard man, is on his trail. At dinner a conversation between Lanyard, Miss Shannon, and Miss Bannan about the Lone Wolf, a celebrated crackman who works alone, alarms him. Lanyard dresses and goes out, leaving Roddy snoring in the next room, then comes back stealthily, to find his room empty. In a few minutes he meets near the Trocadero he finds an invitation from The Pack to the Lone Wolf to join them. Lanyard accepts it, in spite of the Pack's forbidding the buyers to deal with him. He meets three masked members of The Pack: Popinot, apache; and Wertheimer, English, mobman, but the third, an American, is unknown to him. He refuses alliance with them. On his return to his room he is attacked by the dark, but knocks out his assailant. He gives the unconscious man, who proves to be the mysterious American, a hypo-dermic to keep him quiet, discarding Roddy's has been murdered in his bed with evident intention of fastening the crime on him, and changing the appearance of the unconscious American to resemble his own, starts to leave the house. In the corridor he encounters Lucia Bannan, who insists on leaving with him. Having no money, Lanyard is obliged to take refuge with Lanyard in the studio of an absent artist friend of his. He looks for a room alone and retires to get some rest himself. After sleep Lanyard finds his viewpoint changed. He tells Lucia who he is. Miss Shannon confesses to her she is Lucy Shannon, not Bannan, and has been used as a tool by Bannan, the crook. The American member of Roddy's was Bannan's secretary. Lucy agrees to go with him to return the London loot.

CHAPTER XVI—Continued.

"I'm afraid," Lanyard said after a time. "I'm afraid I know what you're thinking. One can't do your intelligence the injustice to imagine you haven't understood me—read all that was in my mind and his voice fell—" "In my heart, I own that I was wrong to speak so transparently, to suggest my regard for you at such a time, under such conditions. I am truly sorry, and beg you to consider unsaid all that I should not have said. After all, what earthly difference can it make to you if one thief more decides suddenly to reform?"

That brought her abruptly to her feet, showing him a face of glowing loveliness, with eyes distractingly dimmed and softened.

"No!" she implored breathlessly. "Please, you mustn't spoil it! You've paid me the price of compliments, and would I might think I deserved it! You say you need a year to prove yourself. Then—I've no right to say this—and you must please not ask me what I mean—then I grant you that year. A year—I shall wait to hear from you from the day we part, here in Paris. And tonight I will go with you, too, and gladly, since you wish me to!"

And then as he, having risen, stood at loss, thrilled and incredulous, with a brave and generous gesture she offered him her hand, across the table whereon still rested the spoils of his final coup.

"Mr. Lanyard, I promise."

Then reverently he bowed his head and touched his lips to that hand—and felt it snatched swiftly away, and started back, aghast, the idyl roughly disrupted, the castle of his dreams tumbling in thunders round his ears.

In the studio skylight overhead a pane of glass had fallen in with a shattering crash as ominous as the trumpet of doom.

CHAPTER XVII.

"For That's Impossible."

Like a blow from an unseen hand the sheet of that alarm drove the girl back from the table to the nearest wall and for a moment held her there transfixed in panic.

To her wild, staring eyes that questioned his so urgently Lanyard promptly nodded grave reassurance. He hadn't stirred after his first involuntary start, and before the last fragment of splintered glass had fallen tinkling to the floor above, he was calming her in the most matter-of-fact tones.

"Don't be alarmed," he said. "It's nothing—merely Solon's skylight goes smash!"

"But call that nothing!" she cried gustily. "What caused it, then?"

"My negligence," he admitted gloomily. "I might have known it—that wide spread of glass, with the studio electrica full ablaze below, would give the show away completely. The house is known to be unoccupied, and it wasn't to be expected that both the police and Popinot's crew would overlook so shining a mark. And it's all my fault, my oversight. I should have warned you about the lights! High time I was quitting a game I've no longer the wit to play by the rules!"

"But the police would never—" "Certainly not. This is merely Popinot's gentle method of informing us we're on the job. But I'll just have a look to make sure. No—stop where you are, please. I'll rather go alone."

He swung alertly through to the reception hall window, pausing there only long enough for an instantaneous reconnaissance through the draperies—a fugitive survey that discovered the Impasse Stanislas no more abandoned to the wind and rain, but tenanted visibly by one, at least, who lounged beneath the lonely lamp-post, a shoulder against a featureless civilian silhouette with attention fixed on the little house.

But Lanyard didn't doubt that this one had a dozen fellows skulking with in call.

Springing up the stairs, he paused prudently at the topmost step, one quick glance showing him the huge rent gaping black in the middle of the skylight, the second the missile of destruction lying amid a litter of broken glass—a brick wrapped in newspaper by the look of it.

Swooping forward, he retrieved this and darted back from the exposed space beneath the shattered skylight barely in the nick of time, for he had no more than cleared the threshold than a second something fell through the gap and buried itself in the hardwood parquet. This last was a bullet fired from the roof of one of the adjoining buildings, confirming his prior reasoning that the first missile must have fallen from a height rather than have been thrown up from the street to wreak such destruction with those tough, thick panes of clouded glass.

Swearing softly to himself, he descended to the kitchen.

"As I thought," he said coolly, exhibiting his find. "They're on the roof of the next house—though they've stationed a sentry in the street, of course."

"But that second thump—" the girl demanded.

"A bullet," he answered, placing the bundle on the table and clutching the string that bound it.

"But what are we to do now?" she stammered. "If they've surrounded the house—"

"Don't worry—there's more than one way out," he responded, frowning at the newspaper. "I wouldn't have picked this place out otherwise. Nor would Solon have rented it in the first instance had it lacked an exit in event of creditors. Ah—thought so!"

"What?"

"Troyon's is gone," he said, without looking up. "This is tonight's Presse, greatly discolored by one which stands at six thirty this morning and in less than half an hour had reduced the ancient structure to a heap of smoking ashes!"

He ran his eye quickly down the column, selecting salient phrases: "Believed to have been of incendiary origin, though the premises were uninsured—that's an intelligent guess! 'Narrow escape of guests in their whatemaycalls. Three lives believed to have been lost—one body recovered, charred almost beyond recognition—Roddy's, of course—poor devil!'"

Make Good Men of Your Boys.

Fathers and Mothers:

It is your desire and hope that your boy shall be something and be the best. At least I have a reason to think that it may be so.

To have an understanding with you about the work that is being done in the Boy Scout movement I am sending you this message with the hope that you will read it and understand.

In order to get the best results in all work for boys, there must be a home behind. The Scout movement wants all parents to understand that above everything is the home, and in that place must be put to action the high ideals, which took place in the mind during the hours in school, church and scout meetings.

Work among boys is a necessity and the boy problem really is a serious one but thanks to the many organizations working for the best there is in a boy. Much has been done for keeping him on the right road—the road to true manhood, where every man is king. After all, true manhood is what a boy is longing for, but how shall he get these as long as so many boys leave school with only the haziest idea of what is right and what is wrong and with no personal ideals that amount to anything in life. As long as character development is neglected we cannot talk of a well educated human race. A boy is four-sided, he is physical, mental, social and religious and to meet him on the ground, where he stands, is an idea which the Boy Scout movement is maintaining. The boys in Grayling have many advantages over the boys in the bigger city; we have the nature with its woods, streams and lakes close by our door. We live in nature always, no high buildings or dark walls obstruct our view from God's wonderful world. But there are many other things in Grayling, which are much worse than the bigger city, for instance, "The Gang Spirit," Saloons and other haunts around places that are only working for their own selfish interest. Therefore, I as Scoutmaster, ask for your support for your own boy's sake; without your help, in what is noble and good I can do nothing. Encourage your boy to attend the gymnasium classes on Tuesdays, at four o'clock and Saturdays at two p. m. Encourage him to be strong. Let him build up a good house for the soul to live in. After all, probably the physical parts of a boy's development in the age of 12 to 14 is above everything. Tell him to be up with his weekly dues, which is five cents. Regular troop meetings will be held on the second Thursday of every month. At these meetings, talks will be given by local talent on various subjects. Sometimes little entertainments will be given by the boys. You shall feel free to attend these meetings. On Friday afternoons the patrols have their meetings, where time is taken up for practice in the various Scout activities such as, first aid field study, knot tying, signaling, good turn reports etc.

Once a month a hike is arranged and every boy should attend these hikes as much can be learned out in nature. The Scout motto is "Be Prepared." That means to be prepared in mind and body, to do his duty to whoever may ask it of him. One object which a Scout always should bear in mind is to do a kind act to someone every day, or in other language a do good turn daily. Many boys like to help everybody, but their parents, to do a good turn every day. Hoping to have your co-operation, I remain, Yours truly,

L. C. Bundgaard,

Scoutmaster.

Opera House Company Elect Officers.

Correspondence

Lovells.

Dr. A. C. McKinnon of Lewiston was in Lovells Sunday on professional business.

Miss Elsa Salling of Grayling spent Sunday in Lovells, the guest of Miss Matilda Foley.

C. W. Keuhl of Saginaw spent Monday out on his ranch.

Lillie Masters returned to Lovells Monday after a few weeks' visit at her home in West Branch.

Mrs. Hanna returned home Saturday from Sigbee, leaving her daughter much improved.

Vance and daughter returned to Lovells Tuesday from Tawas, leaving his sister who was so seriously ill in a much improved condition.

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Parker Saturday, March 4th. Both mother and babe are doing fine.

The Caid children are on the sick list carefully taking care of the measles.

The dance at the pavilion was well attended Saturday night and as usual enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Gale and daughter left Tuesday to visit in Gaylord and also Saginaw.

T. E. Douglas attended the Odd Fellows dance in Grayling last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Owens spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Douglass, in honor of Master Edgar's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Griffin returned from Ann Arbor Tuesday, where Mr. Griffin has been receiving treatment for burns received early in December. He has fairly recovered from the effects.

Photographer Winzard was in Lovells Tuesday obtaining winter views.

Ralph Hewitt, from Winn, Mich., formerly of this county, spent Saturday in Lovells.

The ladies of the Lovells sewing circle enjoyed the finest afternoon last Thursday since their organization, in the way of a sleigh ride to the home of Mrs. George F. Owens. The ladies met at the home of Mrs. Stillwagon and at one o'clock they loaded into the big sleigh and with Mrs. Papenhus as teamster the merry crowd traveled on. The afternoon was spent in sewing, card playing and last, but by no means least, in partaking of a sumptuous chicken dinner prepared by the hostess. The ladies presented Mrs. Owens with a very pretty salad bowl and about 5 o'clock left for their homes.

Master Edgar Douglass entertained about twenty of his schoolmates Saturday afternoon in honor of his birthday which was Sunday, March 5th. A very nice dinner was prepared by Mrs. Douglass for the little folks and the afternoon was without a doubt thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Prizes Also Awarded in Essay Writing Contest.

Merriam Gottschalk of Johannesburg won first prize and Mildred Corwin of Grayling second, in C. J. Hathaway's essay writing contest.

The essay writing contest on "What Optometry has accomplished for Eye Safety," conducted by C. J. Hathaway in his campaign for better publicity and knowledge of Optometry among the teachers and pupils of our public schools of Grayling and the surrounding towns, closed March 1st with Johannesburg in the lead; they capturing three out of four prizes. This was made possible and was due largely to the interest and personal work of Supt. W. A. Price, who is ever alert to the best interests and well-being of the pupils under his charge.

After listening to the talk on "Optometry and Eye Safety" as given by C. J. Hathaway, he made a thorough investigation of the merits of Optometry, and the effect defective eyes have on the mental and physical condition of the pupils so handicapped, that he decided to make an examination of each pupil's eyes. This he did with surprising results.

In a letter to Mr. Hathaway he gives the findings of fifty pupils examined. He said in part, "I received your lenses and test type and spent nearly two days examining all the pupils in the different rooms. I gave each pupil a private examination and out of fifty pupils I found at least a dozen bad cases and several other doubtful ones. This is certainly a surprise to me."

This no doubt is a fair average of the conditions to be found in most any school, one would care to investigate and would solve the problem of the dull backward pupil in a large percentage of cases.

Mr. Hathaway says the contest from the standpoint of the number taking part was a disappointment, but the essays alone, were but secondary, a means to an end; the educational and publicity value taking first place in the campaign.

Mr. Hathaway in commenting on the essays submitted, stated, "That considering the difficult subject to be handled, and the limited amount of material at hand for reference, the essays without exception were remarkably good and show considerable thought and research work. The winning essay will be published in the Avalanche next week."

The study of conditions in our schools pertaining to proper illumination, the elimination of glare from the blackboards, seating problems, etc., has been made a subject for special investigation during the past ten years by Mr. Hathaway, and has gained for him among Optometrists of standing in the profession, the distinction of being an authority along these lines. One of the leading Optometrical journals, The Optometrist & Optician, devoted considerable space in the April number to the educational value of this campaign.

It is one thing to conduct a contest where in order to take part it is necessary to spend a certain amount of money with the party conducting it, and another matter altogether to carry out a campaign of the nature of the one referred to above, where no money was asked or expected. The only hope of reward of remuneration to come to Mr. Hathaway being the knowledge of work well done, and such professional patronage as might indirectly come his way.

Rank Foolishness.

You occasionally see it stated that colds do not result from cold weather. That is rank foolishness. Were it true colds would be as prevalent in midsummer as in midwinter. The microbe that causes colds flourishes in damp, cold weather. To get rid of a cold take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is effective and is highly recommended by people who have used it for many years as occasion required, and know its real value. Obtainable everywhere.

How to Prevent Croup.

When the child is subject to attacks of croup, see to it that he eats a light evening meal, as an overloaded stomach may bring on an attack; also watch for the first symptom—hoarseness, and give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse. Obtainable everywhere.

LEARNED AS HE WENT ALONG

Youth Starting in an Electrical Work. A Helper Picked Up Information That He Needed.

Joe Kehring started into electrical work as a "green hand," never having done a bit of electrical work in his life; but he was determined to make a blip at knowing the trade.

His first job was at the Fidelity Trust building, where he was sent, as a helper, with a journeyman to "rough in" some electrical work on the sixth floor. When the journeyman wasn't looking Joe spent his time with a pocket rule, the only tool he had, measuring the thickness of the pipes, so that he would know what pipes to pick up when they were called for by size; and the wrenches, so that he would know what size wrench to use for any size pipe. The journeyman put Joe to work at cleaning out some pipes, while he "laid off the floor" at the other end of the building. Before long the journeyman was ready to bend some pipe, and needing the pipe bender, he called to Joe:

"Here, son, hand me that 'hickey.'"

Joe looked all around him, but he couldn't see anything that the man could call a "hickey." Not daring to trust himself at picking out the right tool, he pretended not to hear, hoping that the man would forget about it.

"Hand me that 'hickey.'"

The man did not seem much disposed to forget; but, not seeing anything that looked like a "hickey," Joe kept tinkering with the piece of pipe he was working on. The man was getting angry.

"D—n you, kid, get me that 'hickey.'"

Joe saw that something had to be done.

"Go get it yourself! You've got feet!" he shouted.

Then Joe watched what the man picked up.—Indianapolis News.

J. M. BUNTING, Prop.

lows had no expensive legal talent to assist him, thus eliminating enormous expense, and relied upon his regular office assistants. Among the latter is D. H. Crowley, brother of our townsman, J. E. Crowley. From a financial standpoint this was the cheapest big case Michigan has ever prosecuted. Mr. Fellows is a candidate for nomination for justice of the Supreme court and no doubt will be elected.

Wednesday—Rest and exercise.
Thursday—Cleanliness and what it will do for you.
Friday—Clothing and dress.
Last Friday evening the following members of the Freshman class formed a party which enjoyed a sleigh ride to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stephan: Messrs. Chas. Gierke, Patay McKay, Loyl Cameron, Walter Doroh and Percy Failing, and Misses Irene

With this issue of the Avalanche we include the first installment of our Semi-Monthly magazine section. This new feature is added to the Avalanche without any extra charge to our subscribers. As the name implies, they will be published twice each month—second and fourth weeks, and will continue for one year. Each issue will contain interesting stories and they come at a time of the week when good snappy stories may be enjoyed. It is needless to say that the feature adds considerable to the cost of this publication and we therefore must insist upon subscriptions being paid up to date. The Avalanche stands high among the newspapers of Northern Michigan and we want you to help us to make it still better, assuring you of our gratitude and thanks.

The Free Press, in one of their issues of last week, published a fine picture of Attorney General Grant Fellows and told of his work before the United States Federal court in which he represented the State of Michigan vs. the Ann Arbor railroad, winning a verdict in favor of the State. This is the third big case Mr. Fellows has won against railroad corporations for the State. He had arrayed against him railroad attorneys of national repute and his victory entitles him to the greatest of credit. Unlike previous attorneys, Mr. Fellows had no expensive legal talent to assist him, thus eliminating enormous expense, and relied upon his regular office assistants. Among the latter is D. H. Crowley, brother of our townsman, J. E. Crowley. From a financial standpoint this was the cheapest big case Michigan has ever prosecuted. Mr. Fellows is a candidate for nomination for justice of the Supreme court and no doubt will be elected.

John Clark, now of Wayne, Mich., but recently a resident of this city, arrived in Grayling last Wednesday for a few days' visit and on business. He is in the carpenter business in Wayne and says that business is good and that he likes Wayne very much.

COTTON FABRICS IN NEW WEAVES.

Displays of spring dress goods in the shops are enriched by many beautiful and novel cotton fabrics that are a revelation in the art of weaving cotton. They include canvas cloths and basket weaves that promise something of a revolution in apparel for warm weather. There are the smart awning stripes in white with all colors and white with black, in which colorings and the arrangement of stripes are such as to be used for separate skirts to be worn with coats of a plain color. Basket weaves are most attractive in black and white, but are shown in many designs adapted to skirts and suits. Cottons, in fact, are usurping the place of woollens and silks by the force of the beauty and practicality of the new weaves.

Some of the familiar cotton materials like cretonne in light weights are woven with reference to their use in dresses and suits. In suits, plain, coarse linens or cottons are used with them, made into coats finished with collars, cuffs, belts, pockets and other details of finishing, made of cretonne like that in the skirt. Or this is reversed and the plain skirt is worn with a cretonne coat. Beach suits in which hats and bags and pillows are made of these fabrics could hardly be more pleasing than they are.

All of this promises a summer of colorful clothes. These cotton materials are moderate in price and there are no others smarter in design. Best of all, they are washable.

One of the new canvas cloths is shown in an afternoon gown pictured above. It is a one-piece model with full plain skirt and surplice waist. The edges of the bodice and bottom of the skirt are finished with cord covered with the canvas. The sleeves are of cream-colored net flouncing, and the embroidered edge forms the deep cuff that extends over the hand. A rosette, which fastens the surplice, is made of the canvas also.

This gown could hardly be simpler. The fluffiness which is appropriate to sheer fabrics is out of place in these heavier weaves, and in large patterns of gay flowers the simpler the design, the better.

Capes have become a fad and appear everywhere in smart spring styles. In tailored gowns, in suits and coats, and in dresses of all kinds, all sorts of variations of the original shoulder cape betray its influence on the mode. It bids fair to oust the high collar from frocks, only to capture them for its own. For many engaging little

Add to Nation's Wealth.
Connected with the coke industry was the completion, during the last summer, of a number of large plants for the recovery of benzol from by-product coke-oven gas. This gives the United States its first output of this material, so important as a raw material in the manufacture of high explosives and chemical dyes.

The KITCHEN CABINET

A light supper, a good night's sleep and a fine morning, have often made a hero of the same man who by indigestion, a restless night and a rainy morning would have proved a coward.—Chesterfield.

SANDWICHES FOR GUESTS.

Good wholesome bread is the great food in our homes and is often-times the most fully prepared. For the busy woman who has little time to prepare the light bread in the longer process this will appeal to her:

Quick Bread.—Boil and mash seven potatoes, add a pint of water in which the potatoes have been boiled, and three pints of cold water, then stir in two and a half cakes of yeast dissolved in a little warm water, two tablespoonsful of salt, two of sugar and three of flour, mix and add a pint of boiling water; when cool add to the first mixture and cover with a cloth and keep warm ten hours. Then place in a moderate cool place until needed. For each loaf of bread put four cupsful of flour, warm and sifted into a bread pan with a pint of the yeast, a cupful of scalded milk, cooled, and a tablespoonful of lard. Mix with a spoon, then knead briskly for ten minutes, mold into loaves and let rise in a warm place. When light bake forty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

Tea Rolls.—Scald two cupsful of milk and pour it over a cupful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of butter, and a teaspoonful of salt. When it is cool to lukewarm beat into it three cupsful of flour, sifted three times, then add a cake of yeast, dissolved in a fourth of a cupful of lukewarm water. Cover and let rise until it is light, then add two well-beaten eggs, three more cupsful of flour and a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Place in a buttered bowl and let rise until double its bulk. Form into small rolls and place in a buttered pan, let them rise until very light. Brush the tops with melted butter and bake in a hot oven for fifteen minutes by adding to the above one-half a cupful of cocoa.

Popovers.—Take two cupsful of flour, two cupsful of milk, three eggs and a teaspoonful of salt. Beat the eggs until light, add the milk and salt and pour gradually into the flour, beating all the time. Strain the batter and pour into hot greased pop pans. Bake in a hot oven twenty-five minutes.

There is a common error in thinking that a hot water bath is a cure for indigestion. It is nothing if it is not indigestion.—Napoleon.

HOUSEKEEPERS' HELPS.

The indispensable pocket in a kitchen-apron may be put near the edge of the apron, but on the under side where it will not be caught and worn off on every projecting point.

Treat your broom to a hot water bath of hot soap suds, dipping it until it is bright and clean, then shake out the water and let dry hanging. An eye screw should be placed in every broom, and then it should be hung after using. Such a broom will give a third longer service than one that is not taken care of.

Have a change drawer placed under the shelf of your kitchen cabinet, with a spring arranged with bell to lock it and avoid another using it, and from this pay all the small accounts as they come. Where this system has been tried there is less overcharging and it is well liked by both the collector and the housewife.

When milk is scorching, pour it at once into a clean dish and set it into cold water. This will remove every trace of the taste if it has not been too badly burned.

One of the easiest ways of mending china and one which will make it water and heat proof is to use the white paint of oil colors used by artists. A small tube costs ten cents and will last for a hundred mended dishes. Mend the dish and put it away for six weeks to get thoroughly hard. Then if any of the paint has oozed out on the edge it can be scraped off and the dish will be as good as ever. Clean your bed springs by putting them on a bright day. They will dry in a few minutes.

Tea and coffee stains, or, in fact, any stains that seem obstinate and those of long standing may be removed with about North Dakota.

North Dakota, besides its Devils Lake, its bad lands and its tremendous stretches of absolutely worthless scenery, is chief producer in this country of three grains—spring wheat, flax and barley. It also is bounded on the straight up by the swiftest moving fresh air in America.

Give Credit to Chinese.
The earliest designs used for china at Worcester, England, are believed to have been copied from the Chinese.

Chronic Grouch.
The subject under discussion was lucky signs, omens and the like. "I must confess to being a firm believer in number seven," remarked a successful tradesman. "For instance, there are just seven letters in the word success." "Yes, and in failure, too," growled the inevitable pessimist.—Exchange.

Leave Eggs for Sun's Hatching.
A plant has been discovered in Cuba bearing fruit like figs in which flies lay their eggs, to be hatched by the sun.

peroxide. Put the peroxide on the spots when the clothing is on the line, repeat until all trace is removed. The nice thing about using this is that you need not wash the clothing, as the liquid does not injure the fabric.

To freshen rolls or biscuits damped them slightly by a sprinkle of water, slip them in a paper bag and lay on the rack in a hot oven.

The world is full of unfortunate things but one almost indecision.—Sam Johnson.

STAFF OF LIFE.

Sandwiches are used particularly for cold repasts, especially for outdoor excursions and picnics. They are easily made and depend for perfection on their daintiness. For chicken salad sandwiches chop the chicken and celery much finer than for the salad. Cut the bread in narrow oblongs, butter, lay on a lettuce leaf and a filling of the salad.

Fig Sandwiches.—Prepare a half-pound of figs by chopping them, and a third of a cupful of sugar, a half-cupful of boiling water, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, mix and cook these ingredients in a double boiler until thick enough to spread. Cut the bread in fancy shapes, spread with softened butter and place the fig filling between.

Lettuce Sandwiches.—Spread white bread, cut in oblongs, with butter, lay on a lettuce leaf dipped in salad dressing and sprinkle with Roquefort cheese.

Kindergarten Sandwiches.—Cut brown bread with a doughnut cutter, also cut slices of white bread and use the same cutter. Spread with the small circles and the hollow ones, put a dark center into a white ring and a white center into a dark one, spread with butter and cottage cheese, put together in pairs or serve singly.

A most appetizing filling for any sandwich is a common boiled dressing which has been thinned with a little of the seasoned oil and vinegar from oil pickles. With a bit of the pickles chopped and added with a tablespoonful of two of finely chopped boiled ham.

A green pepper finely chopped added to boiled dressing is a flavor which is well liked for sandwiches. These stuffed or plain pickles of various kinds and salt of celery or other seasonings also make a good filling.

Yesterday is gone. Tomorrow never comes. Today is here. If you don't know what to do, sit still and listen. You may hear something. Nobody knows.—Charles Sandberg.

Praise loudly, blame softly.

DAINTY CAKES FOR DESSERTS.

With a sheet of sponge cake one may vary the desserts, having something different each day for a week if so desired.

Cut thin sponge cake in rounds, heap on sliced bananas and add a little lemon juice, then heap on sweetened and flavored whipped cream, dot with a cherry or bits of jelly.

Cut plain sponge cake in slices, using three slices for each serving put these together with sweetened rhubarb or rhubarb and orange marmalade, decorate the top with cream and a bit of jelly.

Oranges sliced and placed as a filling in chocolate cake, served with a boiled custard is delicious.

Cake crumbs of various kinds with any stewed or canned fruit, make a most delicious dessert, served either steamed hot or baked.

Strawberry Dessert.—Cut plain cake in squares, and dip in canned strawberry juice to soften, put on a layer of sliced bananas and decorate with a few choice preserved strawberries. Serve with whipped cream colored with the juice and slightly sweetened.

Fig Betty.—Take two cupsful of cake crumbs, melt a tablespoonful of butter and stir in the crumbs until well mixed. Place a layer of the crumbs in a baking dish, add a thin layer of apple and figs, finish with the buttered crumbs. Add enough lemon juice and water to keep the mixture moist enough to bake. Cook until the apple is tender.

Small Staying Power.

The household encouraged the little servant girl to go to the pictures. They felt that her life needed brightening. She went, and they asked her afterwards whether she had enjoyed herself. "Yes," she said rather dubiously, "but I can't stick them long. I only stayed two hours."—Exchange.

Easy to Harden Lead.

Two per cent of metallic sodium will harden lead so that it will ring when struck.

Daily Thought.

"If men from their youth were wearied of that sauntering humor, wherein some, out of custom, let a good part of their life run listlessly away; they would find time enough to acquire skill and dexterity in hundreds of things."—Locke.

Hint for Mining Investors.

Did ye ever notice how some of the richest mines is bragged about as being the richest, just like people?—Bill McGinty, in Engineering and Mining Journal.

MASK FOR ENGINEERS

MEANS GREATER DEGREE OF SAFETY ON RAILROADS.

By its Use the Man in the Cab at All Times Has a Clear View of the Track—Obstruction Not Possible.

A few years ago an engineer on a Canadian railroad was tried for killing several passengers as a result of a rear-end collision between his engine and a passenger train ahead. His defense was simply that the weather was too dense below zero; a 40-mile wind was blowing, the severity of which was greatly increased by the speed of his train and it was a human impossibility to withstand the cold long enough to get even a glimpse ahead from the open window. The other windows were so incruusted with ice that they might as well have been solid walls for all that could be seen through them. The engineer won his own case on the strength of his testimony, but as a result of the case a mask was invented which eliminates the discomforts of looking forward in bitter cold weather and gives the engineer a clear and unobstructed vision without even glass intervening. The result is secured by deflecting the air current downward as they enter the mask, and by forming a suction or draft at the bottom all air is drawn away from the eyes. Secured that a match held at the back of the shield burns steadily. The space between the deflecting partitions at the top and those at the bottom of the mask is open and it is through this space that the engineer secures a clear view of the track ahead.

The device is being generally adopted by Canadian railroads as a safety measure and for the greater comfort of their engineers.—Scientific American.

Greater Safety.

The more introduction of special safety devices, and of machinery and materials which, while primarily designed to give stability and long service, make for safety also, would give us little ground to hope for equaling the best European standards. If railroad heads were not also conscientiously eager to insure their workers and passengers against accident. The vicissitudes of railway history, moreover, show forcibly that the safety of any particular line is determined by the general efficiency of its administration. A road that is being financially exploited or run by incompetent officials is certain to have such a record of accidents as that of the New Haven several years ago. Only by the raising of general standards of railway administration can we have any permanent guaranty of greater safety. But this is no reason why problems concerned with safety should not have special and careful study, given with greater co-operation between different roads than we have yet had.

"First Things" in Railroad.

The Erie railroad, the first great east and west trunk line, is credited with many of the "first things" done by railroads in this country. It was the first railroad in the world to dispatch its train by telegraph; ran the first emigrant train over the rails, also the first cattle train and the first milk train; was the first railroad in the world to use a bell cord. The first excursion train in the United States was run over the Erie from Goshen, N. Y., to New York city, July 4, 1842. The first experiment ever made with sleeping cars was made by the Erie, the company building two—the "Erie" and the "Ontario"—in 1843. They preceded the Pullmans.

Lord Alverstone Early Rider.

When at the bar the late Lord Alverstone was an enthusiastic early rider, and he never seemed to know the meaning of fatigue. He invariably rose between five and six o'clock in the morning, and he used to digest his briefs for the day before he commenced breakfast. On one occasion he arranged a consultation with a junior at 6:30 a. m. and to keep the appointment the young man stayed up all night. This, of course, is a version of the college story about Barham, the writer of "Ingoldsby Legends," who, when pulled up for not attending morning chapel at seven o'clock, replied: "Well, sir, the fact is you are too late for me. I find that if I don't get to bed by five or six o'clock I'm fit for nothing the next day."

Limited Field.

"Well, well! I see we had another wedding in gilded circles!" "Such a pity this world-war is still going on!"

"What do you mean?" "There really isn't any place for very, very rich couples to go on a honeymoon except Honolulu."

Ties for Italian Lines.

The Italian state railways are to be supplied with 10,000,000 Chilean sleepers at the rate of 2,000,000 a year.

NO ADVANCE IN TRAIN SPEED

Prohibitive Operating Expenses Have Effectually Prevented Expected Increase.

There is no question about the fact that greater power can be concentrated in an electric locomotive than in one operated by steam, but it does not follow that railroad companies will accelerate the speed of their trains because they have conveniently the power necessary to do so.

Within one decade, after the locomotive first began hauling regular trains the world was informed that the speed of 100 miles an hour would be achieved by railway trains in the near future. When years elapsed and the 100 miles an hour velocity was not achieved, people interested put down a mile a minute, or 80 miles an hour, as the common speed of the coming railway operating, but even that pace never became common, but was attained for short distances on particular trains.

Ever since the steam locomotive was developed to approach to present capacity it has been practicable to run light trains at speeds approximately the mile-a-minute pace, but that speed has been rarely indulged in. Those familiar with fast-train operating are aware that effecting high speed is expensive to railway companies and that the people enjoying the luxury are not inclined to pay for the extra expense incurred. It may be affirmed without fear of successful contradiction that all the luxury trains run at speeds of more than 50 miles an hour have been sources of loss to the companies operating them.

About the beginning of the present century an agitation was carried on in Prussia in favor of employing electric locomotives for maintaining high speed on what was known as the Berlin and Zossen railway. The engines provided were very powerful and met the requirement of hauling an express train for three hours at a speed of 74.5 miles an hour. The required performance was achieved day after day, but it destroyed the track so rapidly that the experiment had to be abandoned after a few weeks, and it will not likely be repeated unless some other new substance more durable than steel is discovered and used in railroad construction. Railway and Locomotive Engineering.

PROVIDE FOR PURE WATER

Railroads Have System Which Provides for Efficient Sterilization of Its Water Coolers.

Precautions against accidents in railway travel by the efficient inspection and maintenance of roadbeds and rolling stock are not the only ways in which railroad companies are striving to safeguard the interests of their patrons. One of the large eastern roads has in force a rule that every water cooler in every passenger car on the entire system must be thoroughly sterilized once every week. This is done by passing a hose into the tanks and forcing steam into them and through their drain pipes. This both cleans and purifies the coolers and keeps them free from contamination. After the operation has been performed, each tank is marked so that it shows when sterilized and who did the work.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Personal Limitations.

Carlyle said: "Not one false man but does unaccountable mischief." And to be false all one has to do is to trample upon some moral law. There is a popular idea that one can do that with impunity; that one can do as he pleases, so he does not infringe upon the rights of others; and that is true when we consider that every man is interested in every other man obeying the moral laws. No man can lie, cheat, swear, get drunk, abuse his wife, gamble or in any way pollute himself without inflicting an injury to those about him. We boast much of liberty, not seeming to think that when we trample upon God's laws we are trampling upon the rights of everybody around us. There is no worse tyrant in a community than the man who violates the moral law. Mankind is so bound together in a mystic influence that a harm to one is a harm to all and no man can be false to himself without being false to everybody else.

Lucky French Fishermen.

The French fishing fleet off the Newfoundland banks made during 1915 the greatest catch of fish ever recorded in proportion to the number of vessels employed. The fleet, consisting of 11 steam trawlers and 25 sailing vessels, caught 23,294,423 pounds of cod.

Look Trouble in the Face.

It is well to learn to look physical trouble in the face to cheerfully order one's life for better living, without making too much fuss about it, to take care of one's health as a simple obligation to one's self, to one's family and to the community; but not to regard every ache and pain as a national calamity.

Work.

"Work is not man's punishment; it is his reward and his strength, his glory and his pleasure."—George Sand.

WILLIAM E. ROBB, Secretary and Treasurer.

The Man Who fired the shot that brought down the price of automobile insurance so that the farmer and business owner of the State could afford to insure their automobiles against fire, theft, and liability, and who spent his time in obtaining and organizing a safe automobile insurance company.

This Company was organized August 20th, 1912, thus enabling its first members to join at a time of the year when the best risks could be selected and after the more numerous losses of the summer months had passed. This Company obtained about nineteen hundred members which enabled them to pass through the winter and the experimental stage with safety, and the large membership and surplus will now enable the Company to commence the spring work with everything in its favor. The revenue from new members will be large for sometime to come. One Company and one overhead expense will keep the cost down to the lowest rate, as the Company is run on the mutual plan, the cost to join is only $1.00 for policy and 25c per ft. P. State rating. Anyone desiring an application to this agency should write to the Citizens' Mutual Automobile Insurance Company, Howell, Michigan.—Advertisement.

Two Methods of Procedure.

A man in Sussex who owns a number of horses has a great reputation for skill in the treatment of them. One day a farmer who wanted some valuable information approached the horse-owner's little boy, and said: "Look here, my little man, when one of your father's horses is ill, what does he do?" "Do you mean slightly ill or seriously ill?" asked the boy cautiously. "Oh, seriously ill," said the farmer. "Because," said the child, "if a horse is only slightly ill, he gives it medicine; but if it is seriously ill, he sells it."—London Answers.

CYCLONE SEASON NEAR

$1,000,000 of Cyclone Losses in the State of Michigan in the Year 1913.

This Company paid out $272,000 of losses in the year 1913. It has insured during the past five years 9,330 losses and a total of $438,338 to people who have had their buildings wrecked in the State of Michigan. The Company has about 40,000 members, and $80,000,000 of assessable capital. The Company has made only six assessments in nineteen years; thirteen out of the nineteen not a single dollar collected by assessment from any member of this company. No assessments made since 1915, and yet the Company had on hand January 1st, 1916, about $90,000 in cash.

There are about one hundred mutual companies in Michigan covering fire, marine, and life insurance. The saving in cost of such insurance is the saving in cost of our large membership with only one overhead expense, mutual insurance against cyclones, in our Company, or account of the low cost and efficient service, has appealed to the farmers and business men of every section of the State.

The most sudden and terrible which have ruined people in nearly every part of the State should be a warning to you. Insure your property whether it be in the city or country, in a safe Company.

He was telling about all the things he owned, his prize bulldog, his hunchback, his touring car. "But you don't seem interested," he complained.

"Yes, I am," responded the other chap, "but I'm rather occupied to-day. Tell your watter. You just mail me a statement of your assets and I'll read it with all the admiration and awe you could possibly desire."

FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver and bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs" that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleaning" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Adv.

Child Welfare and Work of Mothers' Clubs.

your visits to the school room be cheerful and pleasant. If you find unfavorable conditions or an unhappy atmosphere, find out where the difficulty lies, before blaming the teacher.

Many cases have been overcome by a teacher getting an insight into a child's home environment. When trouble arises, I believe it unwise to rush to the teacher whom perhaps you have never met.

You are irritated and not at all pleasant—the teacher has been annoyed and is in no mood to make the acquaintance of a mother, whose child has been the cause of the trouble.

Mothers are very often criticized for not visiting the schools and not cooperating with the teachers. While this is true, generally speaking it is not the case. It is not necessary to visit the school to find out whether or not your boy is in good hands. A cheery smile or depressed countenance soon tells the tale.

Each child consideration for the teacher, and then in case of trouble why not quietly investigate for yourself and without causing any unpleasantness, find out who is in the right.

This co-operation of mothers with teachers is a broad field of responsibilities and opportunities—it means more to the child, than to either teacher or parent—it really is the moulding of child life and the foundation of its future character. Let us so handle this problem that we may always feel a smile of welcome when we visit the schools. Let us remember the First Settlers' advice in Will Carleton's Michigan story:

"Careful with fire is good advice, we know."

Careful with words is ten times doubly so. Thots unexpected may fall back dead. But God himself could not kill when once said.

Boys flying kites haul in their white-winged birds. But you can't do that when you're flying words.

The real object of a Mothers' club is to secure closer relations between home and school, to train parents to be adequate guardians of their children, to give every mother an opportunity to learn how to develop the physical, intellectual and spiritual nature of her child. These are the mothers' club aims and they can be summed up in one sentence: To raise the standard of Home Life. All over the nation, the newly awakened mother spirit echoes the faith in its personal form. We believe in ourselves, "we believe in our children." Let me add a few words upon the relation of child welfare to the Mothers' club.

Someone has said, "The foundation of the commonwealth is the proper bringing up of the child." And so it think it will be wise for the Mothers' club to discuss subjects which deal with the bearing and rearing of children that they may be physically strong, mentally vigorous, and morally good. They should study first of all the topic of parent-hood, for this treats of the proper rearing of boys and girls to become the fathers and mothers of the future.

Women used to love, feed, and train their children by mother instinct, but science is proving that the old way is not the right way, and by statistics we have learned that through the ignorance of parents, one-half of all the children born, die before they reach the age of fourteen. The new ideas on marriage are coming more and more to be considered of vital importance. Progressive people believe that children should be well born, and that laws should be made and enforced to prevent the marrying of the physically, mentally and morally unfit.

Progressive parents understand that to look at such subjects, as these from the scientific standpoint is clean and wholesome, and that when boys and girls are approaching manhood, and womanhood the questions of marriage should be discussed on a scientific basis.

Since the care and training of the baby rests largely with the mother, it is necessary that she should get about learning how best to do her work, and her studies should begin as soon as she knows that she is to become a mother. Her state of mind in the period before the birth of the child is of vital importance, she should know what preparations are necessary, and how to properly feed, bathe and clothe a baby so as to keep it well and vigorous.

The subject of "Habits" should have much consideration. Bad habits begin in babyhood, if the little one is not properly cared for—some of these are weakness, fretting, unnecessary crying and thumb-sucking.

In children the habits of fast eating, nail biting, lack of cleanliness, teasing, whining, rudeness and so forth are to be avoided or overcome and the good habits of slow eating, cleanliness, courtesy, punctuality, perseverance and many others are to be encouraged and cultivated.

In the long ago it was considered necessary to break the will of a child. Later came the reactionary period when the child was allowed its own way to such an extent that most children were exceedingly disagreeable. It is necessary that parents should realize the duty of training children to obey. Obedience is the underlying principle of good character and good citizenship. How to obtain obedience and at the same time to develop the best qualities of character in a child is a subject that demands much study.

The care and cultivation of the senses is another subject for a Mothers' club to consider.

Doctors and nurses now-a-days if they are efficient—guard carefully the sense of sight at birth. Clubwomen should learn what must be done, to protect a baby's sight. Through the study of the care of a child's eyes has come the custom in large cities of having an oculist occasionally test the eye sight of all school children. Children should be encouraged to observe. At no period in life can one so easily acquire and retain a knowledge of plants and animals as in childhood. Mothers should understand the necessity of consulting a doctor at once if any defect in a child's hearing is discovered, and there are mothers who do not realize the damage that may be occasioned by a blow on the ear. Acute hearing may be developed in a child by its being trained to be attentive.

There is much of importance to be learned in regard to the sense of touch as related to the training of the child. The Montessori system of teaching begins with the use of this sense; in a consideration of the sense of taste one must wrestle with the problem of how far one should go in making a child eat what he dislikes. (Even the sense of smell is not overlooked, but is of importance to educators.)

Deep breathing; pure air in sleeping rooms and school rooms; the necessity of having children's noses and throats examined and properly treated; proper clothing; care of the teeth; proper food for general development; muscular development, and numerous other topics of a kindred nature are all wisely discussed in a Mothers' club.

To study wisely and well, a Mothers' club should have some book or books that bear directly on the subject under consideration. The greatest error parents can make is to allow their children to remain in ignorance of sex relations at the time they are undergoing physical changes. At this time when they need guidance and understanding and advice, most children are left to stumble along as best they may, to learn the truths of life from some companion and there by a morbid idea regarding reproduction of life. The number of girls who become mothers of illegitimate children because they did not know the number of boys who become victims of horrible diseases because they were not instructed, and ignorant women, who enter into matrimony only to become the victims of these same diseases—these are only a few of the evils resulting from gross ignorance. These are the returns of instinct and mother love.

Charles Nelson Crittendon, one of our foremost men engaged in rescue work.

"I do not hesitate to say, in my experience in rescue work among unfortunate girls, extending over a period of twenty-five years, embracing a knowledge of history of tens of thousands of them, that fully fifty per cent of these girls took to suicide."

Dr. J. Stanley Hall says:

"From experience and observation, I am inclined to believe that the greatest obstacle to personal purity is the tendency of parents to doubt or deny the prevalence of dangerous evils, to think their own body will remain unscathed, to affect to believe that plain dealing such as I have spoken of, is immodest or suggestive or at least uncalled for. Such an attitude is positively culpable. I know no severer condemnation of a father than the excuse of a youth whose life has suffered blight, when he can honestly say 'I did not know.'"

Highest authority on medical investigations are agreed on these statistics:

First, 70 per cent, of all special operations on women are due to causes that follow in the wake of a young man sowing wild oats.

Second, at least 50 per cent of all childless homes in the country are due to one of these causes.

Third, at least two in every six cases among babies of blindness at birth in early infancy, are due to this cause.

Fourth, add to these the thousands of babies who are born dead or die soon after birth, and add yet to these the still greater number, who are compelled to go thru life afflicted with transmitted disease—then you have before you, a fairly good picture of the tragedy of ignorance in children. And yet we hear mothers argue "instinct and mothers love will tell us what to do."

We mothers have a duty to perform, we deserve no thanks for doing it, but we must answer for ourselves if we fail in the performance. It is a mighty project for a community—it needs our co-operation. Let this then be our motto, "Better mothers and a better community."

SUICIDE CHANGES HIS MIND

Taste of Carbolic Acid Showed Indiana Man He Didn't Want to Die.

Indianapolis.—Edward G. Smith, aged twenty-five, of 652 North Jefferson avenue, decided to commit suicide, but quickly changed his mind after he had tasted a small quantity of carbolic acid.

The customary fateful note, in which he attributed his despondency to a quarrel with his wife, was found in his pocket.

Smith staged his attempt at suicide in a drug store at Illinois and Washington streets. After the clerk had sold him the acid he turned around and held the upturned bottle to his lips. A moment later he gave out a shriek, threw the bottle and remaining bit of acid at the clerk and then fell against the counter. An ambulance took him to the City hospital.

Physicians at the hospital said that Smith's tongue was slightly burned, but that he had not swallowed any of the acid.
